Bonner Promises Probe

Case of Frozen Woman Holds Up RCMP Funds

Angry Socred Demands Facts

Passage of RCMP expenditure estimates for the coming year is being delayed by the legislature pending further investigation of allegations that the force allowed a drunken Indian woman to freeze to death at Williams Lake.

The move came after Cyril Shelford (SC, Omineca) hammered away in the legislature to get more information on the subject which he first brought up Tuesday.

"I hope I can keep my temper long enough to say what I have to say," he told the House yesterday, referring to the report that the woman was dumped off at the Williams Lake stampede ground by the RCMP because she was drunk and the jail was full.

Promising further study of the case, Attorney-General Robert Bonner told the House he had been informed that the woman, Mrs. Elizabeth Harry, 35, and her husband, Isadore, had been picked up by the RCMP for drunkenness in November, 1954.

TAKEN OUT

Because the jail was full, they were detained and released, then taken to the stampede grounds to sober up.

Mr. Harry was said to be less drunk than his wife, and was told to look after her. However, he went back into Williams Lake. Next morning, when he discovered his wife was still absent, he thought she had gone to a funeral at Alkali Lake, and went there.

It was three days before Mr. Harry found his wife, dead, still at the stampede grounds. He was charged with manslaughter and later acquitted, said Mr. Bonner.

"The husband was told to wait with his wife until she sobered up," admitted Mr. Shelford. "That's like telling a four-year-old to look after a two-year-old."

He said it was a most terrible thing. "How long did she lie there before she died?" asked the Socred member.

The RCMP officer in charge of the area was promoted and sent east.

CATTLE, HORSES

"If someone in that area had taken cattle or horses and treated them that way, the SPCA would have been on them in 24 hours, and with the co-operation of the police, they would be thrown in jail," he declared.

Mr. Shelford said he had phoned Williams Lake yesterday and was told that it was standard RCMP procedure to take drunken Indians out to the stampede grounds.

He termed the case "something like the Nazis treated the Jews."

"Why wasn't this made public?" Mr. Shelford demanded. "Why wasn't disciplinary action taken against the RCMP? I want a full statement."

Attorney-General Bonner said the story was "entirely without foundation" to suggest that Indians were dumped off at the stampede grounds.

"The wife was left in the custody of her husband, who was apparently quite able to look after her, and as a matter of fact, this he agreed to," he said.

HOLD UP VOTE

"Who gave you this advice?" asked Mr. Shelford. "I hope it wasn't the police. I suggest we hold this vote up until more facts are known."

Gordon Dowding (CCF, Burnaby) said it was "hardly good enough" for Mr. Bonner to obtain his information on the case from the RCMP.

"Possibly an inquiry should be made," he said.

The legislature agreed to hold up the vote until more details are known.

'Halt Egypt'

Step In Fast, Jews Ask U.S.

Compiled from CP and UP

Israel last night appealed to the United States to take action immediately to halt Egyptian moves to assume full military control of the Gaza Strip.

Israeli ambassador to the U.S., Abba Eban, conferred for 35 minutes with Acting Secretary of State Christian Herter in Washington.

He is reported to have pointed out the danger to the Suez Canal area if Egypt is allowed to resume full control of the Gaza Strip, and that if Egypt is not stopped immediately the move will be the first in a new series to force another crisis over the canal.

He said, in part, that "the renewal of raids by marauders from the Gaza Strip is a matter of extreme gravity and danger."

Earlier yesterday, President Eisenhower told a news conference the U.S. had given its views on the new crisis to the UN and it was the responsibility of the UN to handle the situation.

And, in Israel, Premier David Ben-Gurion issued a clear warning that the country will take military action if political negotiations fail to settle the controversy over the administration of the Gaza Strip.

Cuban Turmoil

Batista Foils Bloody Revolution

HAVANA (AP)—Young revolutionaries shot down the outer guard and invaded the presidential palace Wednesday in an effort to seize or kill President Fulgencio Batista. More than 40 men were reported killed.

About 20 of the student-led invaders and three guards defending Batista were killed in the palace fighting.

The death toll in other fighting in the capital was estimated at 20.

The 36-year-old president, a veteran of violence, came through without a scratch. From the palace, he directed a counter-attack led by army tanks to suppress the uprising in the capital.

The invasion force broke past the guard and into the first floor where Batista has offices. He was on the second floor finishing a late luncheon with two cabinet ministers.

Heavy firing around the palace lasted nearly three hours.

The general attack was made by students armed with machine-guns, pistols, rifles and grenades.

Their apparent aim was to kill or capture Batista and set off a revolution to seize the island republic.

Cuba has been smoldering with revolt against the one-time army sergeant Strongman for months. But Wednesday's outbreak was the first in the capital. It was not immediately linked with a die-hard rebellion centred in mountainous eastern Cuba.

Until Need Is Met

B.C. Can Tell Board 'Classrooms Only'

The provincial government could order the Greater Victoria school board to build nothing but standard classrooms until such times as all students in the district can be accommodated, Education Minister Leslie Peterson said last night.

His statement came after Don Smith (SC, Victoria) said in the legislature that he had received complaints that the school board here was building "too elaborate" schools.

The board's $4,470,000 school building by-law squeaked through last Saturday.

Mr. Peterson did not answer Mr. Smith's question at the time but later told reporters that his department could, but not necessarily would, order the board to cut down on "frills."

Mr. Smith also urged that the government's plan to match a total of $5,000,000 if given by industry and the public toward capital expansion of UBC be extended to Victoria.

He said a university could then be built in Victoria.

"Industry on Vancouver Island would certainly donate if given a chance to contribute in a similar plan for Victoria," he said. "I'm sure we could match the $5,000,000 very quickly."

Strachan Finds

Socred System 'Machiavellian'

Failure of the government to include in education department estimates grants under the new aid to UBC formula was scored in the legislature last night by Opposition Leader Robert Strachan as an example of the "Machiavellian way our affairs are handled."

By excluding the dollar-for-dollar grants announced earlier in the session by Education Minister Les Peterson from the estimates, he said, the government is "well on its way" to piling up supplementary estimates which have "no recourse to this House."

He admitted that the government has the authority to make such expenditures, which, he said, amounted to $25,000,000 last year, or about 10 per cent of the whole budget.

"The government has lots of authority," he said. "And the more I think about it the more Machiavellian are the methods by which our affairs are being handled."

"It doesn't bode well when this business comes from a government that says it will keep people informed." Mr. Strachan said. "This government doesn't even keep this House informed."

Mr. Peterson explained that the grants were not included in the estimates because the figures listed there "to my understanding" only represent monies expected to be spent this year.

"There may be only a portion of it spent this year, or possibly none at all," he said. "It may be spent over a number of years."

Rising again to his feet, the CCF leader said that if the government "may not spend any of it" this year, "how long is this going to take? There is a crisis there. Money is urgently needed. Are you going to hold off on a grant year after year until someone comes up with a grant?"

He added that he never discusses state visits unless arrangements have been completed.

Officials indicated that the timing of an official announcement is one of the matters to be settled in discussions on the visit in London.

Speed Up Promised

VANCOUVER (CP)—A speedy judgment on the appeal of former lands minister Robert Sommers against a court ruling permitting examination of his bank accounts by lawyer David Sturdy was promised Wednesday by the B.C. Appeal Court.

Fellow Tory Blasts Racist

TORONTO (CP) — CCF Leader MacDonald said Wednesday in the Ontario legislature that a property deed made by a Progressive Conservative member of the House of Commons was the most shocking case of racial prejudice he had ever seen.

He said a restrictive convenant in a deed made out in 1946 by Joseph Warner Murphy, Conservative MP for Lambton West, prohibited sale or renting to any Negro, Asiatic or Jew.

Mr. MacDonald said he realized such prejudice was outlawed in later legislation but he gave the deed as an example of the need for an educational program against racial prejudice.

Allan Grossman (PC—Toronto St. Andrews) said if the information is true, Mr. Murphy is a "very ignorant man" and "I feel sorry for him."

"I do not consider Mr. Murphy a Conservative. He is a disgrace to the great Irish name of Murphy," Mr. Grossman added.

John Yaremko (PC — Toronto Bellwoods) said the CCF leader is trying to smear the Progressive Conservative party.

Eisenhower Gives Hint Of Queen's Visit to U.S.

WASHINGTON (Reuters) — Official circles Wednesday read between the lines of a comment by President Eisenhower to decide that a visit to the U.S. by the Queen and Prince Philip in the fall—probably October — is assured.

Eisenhower was asked at a press conference if he had any comment to make on reports that such a visit has been arranged. He replied that nothing has gone far enough to enable him to comment now.

Wenner-Gren Tells:

How to Make a Million

VANCOUVER (CP) — Get rid of those stocks and bonds if you want to make a million dollars.

Start your own business.

This is the advice of a man who knows.

Axel Wenner-Gren, multi-millionaire Swedish industrialist, says he started making baskets out of old fish cans when he was 10, paid for a college education with the proceeds of a stamp business, then made a million dollars out of vacuum cleaners.

Right now he's in British Columbia making arrangements to spend $5,000,000. He wants to survey a 40,000-square-mile area of the Rocky Mountain Trench of northern B.C. for its mineral wealth and build a 400-mile railway through the Trench.

In his teens, he sold and bought stamps around the world to pay for his college education in Germany.

AXEL WENNER-GREN
...fish cans, stamps

"I could have got the money from my father, as my family was quite wealthy, but I wanted to work through my own way in life."

People don't do that often enough now, he says. They are pampered and want too much from the government.

"If a young person doesn't have enough courage and stamina to fight, as I did, they should stay employed for someone else.

"But if they have the urge for freedom, they should go into business for themselves.

"They should go to the frontiers of the world, for it is easier to get ahead on the frontiers. But the frontiers are more and more disappearing.

"People who have some money shouldn't buy and sell stocks with it all the time. That's the worst thing they can do. It usually ends in a negative way. It's not like an investment.

"They should start their own business. If they have only a little money, they should buy houses. That's the safest investment of all."

IT says in the Financial Post that 27,000,000,000 cigarets, 250,000,000 cigars and 20,000,000 pounds of tobacco were consumed in 1956 by Canada's 5,000,000 smokers.

Half the adult population of this country is hooked with the insane habit of setting fire to a wad of poisonous hay and breathing the fumes.

Canadian smokers paid $565,000,000 last year for the privilege of fouling their lungs with nicotine smog. Of this sum, $300,000,000 went to Dominion and provincial governments in taxes.

Growing, processing and selling tobacco is a $100,000,000 industry in Canada. Some 17,000 Canadian tobacco farmers and factory workers are busily engaged in shortening our lives.

A Martian who cruised down to earth through our haze of tobacco-smoke and observed a multitude of strange creatures fighting small bonfires next to their noses, would run back to his space-ship in terror.

Viewed objectively, smoking is mass madness. It is bad for the lungs and the heart. It is smelly and messy. It starts fires. It costs a fortune. The massed brains of the advertising business have failed to produce one valid reason why anyone should smoke. But 5,000,000 of us keep on doing it, and we love it.

At least, some of us love it. Upon others, the weed exerts a bitter-sweet, self-destroying fascination, a spell they want to break but can not. They love tobacco in the same way that some men love a deadly woman—the kind they can't live with and can't live without.

North American Indians, who launched the unpleasant habit, used tobacco for its "medicinal properties." They really thought it was good for them, poor souls. Some advertising man must have got there before Columbus.

Many Europeans took up smoking to ward off bad smells and plague. Others began smoking to be smart—as boys do when they take their first puff in the barn. Before they knew it, a monster had them by the throat.

The attitude of those who have never touched tobacco is smug and patronizing to the point of nausea. A colleague tells me that whenever someone offers him a cigaret, he is strongly tempted to take it and crumble it in pieces. Bad luck to his crass soul. He deserves to become addicted to something worse than tobacco, like bubble gum or Elvis Presley records.

Fate of 'Trench' Indians

Sickness, Want, Filth

VANCOUVER (CP)—The Province says 300 Sekani Indians are living in sickness, poverty and filth in British Columbia's Rocky Mountain Trench, the site of a proposed multi-million dollar economic development.

Reporter Ron Metcalfe, who recently toured the district from Finlay Forks to Fort Ware with Superintendent Eric Underwood of the Stuart Lake Indian Agency, partly blames the decline of the fur market and a bad winter for the squalid conditions. He says Underwood described the conditions as matched only by the Middle East and India.

Finlay Forks is 500 miles north of Vancouver.

Metcalfe says the men did not look badly clothed or hungry but a girl of five ran barefoot through the snow to meet them. The year-old child of one family hung in a sack on its mother's back. The child was naked although it had a cold and an ulcerated mouth. The cabin was heated by a stove fashioned out of an oil drum.

Some 60 Indians live at Fort Ware. Only one child was born alive during the winter. Its birth was recorded in the usual way, by jotting it down on an old candy bag which was sent to Underwood.

Metcalfe found one spry Indian, the ancient widow Bob Davie. She asked only for some baking soda for her "wicked stomach." Her 10-foot square cabin has one table as its furniture and a page from a comic book hung on the wall as its sole decoration.

Fluoridation for Victoria Faces Delay Not Doom

Chances for fluoridated water in Greater Victoria have been delayed, but not necessarily doomed, by the new B.C. Municipal Act, according to G. K. Sammon, chairman of the Victoria-Esquimalt Union Board of Health.

Up to now, fluoridation could be ordered by city council.

Under the new act such a step cannot be taken unless approved by 60 per cent of the voters in a referendum.

"As things stand today," said Mr. Sammon, "a majority for fluoridation would be impossible to obtain. Trouble is, the public is not in possession of all the facts.

"A highly vocal minority, opposed to fluoridation, has brought about a stalemate. What is needed is education.

"The true information about fluoridation is in the hands of provincial health officials, and should be made available to teachers and organizations for transmission to the public."

Garden Notes

Evil Little Thrip Can Play Havoc

By M. V. CHESNUT, FRHS

Further to yesterday's notes on the planting of gladiolus bulbs, I should tell you that the principal enemy of the gladiolus is a tiny insect called a thrip, a creature which has unusual powers of survival, living through the winter on the stored bulbs.

This bug, tiny as it is, can make a shambles of your glad patch by attacking the flowers and foliage of the growing plants.

It is good insurance to take some precautions against this pest. In the past, it has been the practice of glad growers to soak the bulbs in Lysol and water before planting, and this gave very good control of thrip.

I have gone a bit sour on this technique lately, though, for the makers of Lysol changed the formula a couple of years ago, making it an even more efficient household disinfectant, but the new, more powerful formula seems to cause some injury to the bulbs, delaying the flowering period.

SPECIAL DUST

In place of the liquid dip, then, which is a rather messy business anyhow, I prefer to use an all-purpose garden dust containing both an insecticide against thrip and a fungicide against the various rots and moulds which might attack the bulbs.

Spergon Gladiolus Dust is very good, but any garden dust designed to protect against both bugs and blights may be used. Tomato dust or rose dust will all give good protection.

The bulbs are stripped of their papery "aprons" so the dust can reach all parts of the corm, and are shaken up in a paper bag with a little of the dust. Watch out, though, for bulbs which are sprouted, for these sprouts are brittle and would break off under rough treatment. Such specimens are better dusted by hand, individually.

After dusting, the bulbs can be planted in your gladiolus trench, the bottom of which has been enriched with peat moss and bone meal, as described in yesterday's notes, spacing of corms five inches apart. Simply push them gently into the soft peat soil mixture, then fill in to a depth of three inches using the soil excavated from the trench.

STILL ENOUGH

Your trench was eight inches deep to start with. About two inches of depth was lost when the soil in the bottom was loosened and the peat moss and bone meal mixed in, so with the three-inch covering over the bulbs, your planted trench is still about three inches deep—enough to channel the water to where it will do the most good when the hose or watering can is used.

A little more filling in can be done when the plants have reached a height of about a foot, but it is best to maintain a slight depression for ease of feeding and watering until after the flower spike has emerged.

When the plants become really tall and there is some danger of their being toppled over by gales, the trench should be filled in completely, and a ridge of earth hoed up around the plants, much in the same way as potatoes are earthed up. This should give sufficient anchorage and support to hold the plants upright without the use of stakes.

Fate of 'Trench' Indians

Sickness, Want, Filth

VANCOUVER (CP)—The Province says 107 Sekani Indians are living in sickness, poverty and filth in British Columbia's Rocky Mountain Trench, the site of a proposed multi-million dollar economic development.

Reporter Ben Metcalfe, who recently toured the district from Finlay Forks to Fort Ware with Superintendent Eric Underwood of the Stuart Lake Indian Agency, partly blames the decline of the fur market and a bad winter for the squalid conditions. He says Underwood described the conditions as matched only by the Middle East and India.

Finlay Forks is 300 miles north of Vancouver.

Metcalfe says the men did not look badly clothed or hungry but a girl of five ran barefoot through the snow to greet them. The year-old child of one family hung in a sack on its mother's back. The child was naked although it had a cold and an ulcerated mouth. The cabin was heated by a stove formed out of an oil drum.

Some 60 Indians live at Fort Ware. Only one child was born alive during the winter. Its birth was recorded in the usual way, by jotting it down on an old candy bag which was sent to Underwood.

Metcalfe found one spry Indian, the ancient widow Rob Davie. She asked only for some baking soda for her "wicked stomach." Her 10-foot square cabin has one table as its furniture and a page from a comic book hung on the wall as its sole decoration.

Fluoridation for Victoria Faces Delay Not Doom

Chances for fluoridated water in Greater Victoria have been delayed, but not necessarily doomed, by the new B.C. Municipal Act, according to G. K. Sammon, chairman of the Victoria-Esquimalt Union Board of Health.

Up to now, fluoridation could be ordered by city council.

Under the new act, such a step cannot be taken unless approved by 60 per cent of the voters in a referendum.

"As things stand today," said Mr. Sammon, "a majority for fluoridation would be impossible to obtain. Trouble is, the public is not in possession of all the facts.

"A highly vocal minority, opposed to fluoridation, has brought about a stalemate. What is needed is education.

"The true information about fluoridation is in the hands of provincial health officials, and should be made available to teachers and organizations for transmission to the public."

Garden Notes

Evil Little Thrip Can Play Havoc

By M. V. CHESNUT, FRHS

Further to yesterday's notes on the planting of gladiolus bulbs, I should tell you that the principal enemy of the gladiolus is a tiny insect called a thrip, a creature which has unusual powers of survival, living through the winter on the stored bulbs.

This bug, tiny as it is, can make a shambles of your glad patch by attacking the flowers and foliage of the growing plants.

It is good insurance to take some precautions against this pest. In the past, it has been the practice of glad growers to soak the bulbs in Lysol and water before planting, and this gave very good control of thrip.

I have gone a bit sour on this technique lately, though, for the makers of Lysol changed the formula a couple of years ago, making it an even more efficient household disinfectant, but the new, more powerful formula seems to cause some injury to the bulbs, delaying the flowering period.

SPECIAL DUST

In place of the liquid dip, then, which is a rather messy business anyhow, I prefer to use an all-purpose garden dust containing both an insecticide against thrip and a fungicide against the various rots and moulds which might attack the bulbs.

Spergon Gladiolus Dust is very good, but any garden dust designed to protect against both bugs and blights may be used. Tomato dust or rose dust will all give good protection.

The bulbs are stripped of their papery "aprons" so the dust can reach all parts of the corm, and are shaken up in a paper bag with a little of the dust. Watch out, though, for bulbs which are sprouted, for these sprouts are brittle and would break off under rough treatment. Such specimens are better dusted by hand, individually.

After dusting, the bulbs can be planted in your gladiolus trench, the bottom of which has been enriched with peat moss and bone meal, as described in yesterday's notes, spacing of corms five inches apart. Simply push them gently into the soft peat-soil mixture, then fill in to a depth of three inches, using the soil excavated from the trench.

STILL ENOUGH

Your trench was eight inches deep to start with. About two inches of depth was lost when the soil in the bottom was loosened and the peat moss and bone meal mixed in, so with the three-inch covering over the bulbs, your planted trench is still about three inches deep—enough to channel the water to where it will do the most good when the hose or watering can is used.

A little more filling in can be done when the plants have reached a height of about a foot, but it is best to maintain a slight depression for ease of feeding and watering until after the flower spike has emerged.

When the plants become really tall and there is some danger of their being toppled over by gales, the trench should be filled in completely, and a ridge of earth hoed up around the plants, much in the same way as potatoes are earthed up. This should give sufficient anchorage and support to hold the plants upright without the use of stakes.

Island Ports Idle, Suez Blamed

After-effects of the Suez blockade have caused the worst shipping slump of the year to descend on Vancouver Island lumber ports.

Only three charter freighters called or are scheduled to call at the usually bustling docks at Victoria, Cowichan Bay, Duncan Bay, Harmac, Nanaimo and Alberni this week. Normally most ports have one ship and some more than one vessel tied up at the same time.

An official of King Bros., Victoria shipping agents, said the slump boiled down to the fact that there is too much business and too extended routes for too few ships.

Since the Suez Canal was blocked by Egypt last November, ships that normally took the shortcut route through the Mediterranean to Asia were now forced to detour around South Africa.

"This means that more ships must be at sea to maintain charter schedules," the official said, "consequently there is a shortage of ships in other parts of the world."

Only freighter due at Victoria this week is the Vigan, scheduled to arrive here from Japan early today to discharge steel and then load lumber for a return trip to the Far East.

Only other ship tied up on Vancouver Island is the Duncan Bay at the port of the same name.

Make homemade cream of onion soup by cooking some onion in butter, then ½ chicken broth and ½ milk for the liquid. Season with basil and stir in ripe olive chunks or slices.

Season soft, fluffy scrambled eggs lightly with chili powder and stir in husky chunks of ripe olives and mushrooms sauteed in butter. Garnish the platter with broiled canned sling peach halves and bacon curls.

Lived His Part

Actor Campbell Was Superman

By BRUCE LOWTHER

The star of George Bernard Shaw's plays will always be Shaw himself—but Douglas Campbell as Man gave him a real tussle as Canadian Players of Stratford romped through "Man and Superman" at the Royal Theater last night.

A very appreciative capacity audience enjoyed almost every minute of the play, which closed a two-day stand, and all Victorians interested in good entertainment will be pleased with the Players' announcement that they will likely return next year.

The stage was all Campbell's last night. He put everything Shaw, or anyone else, could want into such lines as "The more things a man is ashamed to do the more respectable he is."

SLOWED DOWN

When Campbell was offstage, which fortunately was only infrequently, everything slowed down. The other players certainly were adequate; it seemed more that they read Shaw's barbs while Campbell lived them.

The redheaded Campbell even sustained the ending, where independent man finally succumbs to feminine superman and decides for history that if you can't beat 'em, marry 'em.

Best of the others were Ted Follows as the wry chauffeur, Max Helpmann as the loud American, Edwin Stephenson as the cloyingly-sweet poet and Tony Van Bridge as the conservative.

DISTAFF SIDE WEAK

Ann Casson was good in the leading role, but in general, the players are weaker this year on the distaff side. They have no one who measures up to the worth of Frances Hyland.

Their ability to handle comedy made more apparent the heaviness of their drama, particularly "Othello" on Tuesday. It is hoped that the balance will be better next year, but still it must be remembered that this excellent group is very young.

WASHINGTON — President Eisenhower abandoned plans for a Florida vacation and announced he will make a "leisurely trip" to Bermuda aboard a navy cruiser, arriving Wednesday on the eve of his opening conference with British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan.

On the Right Track

THE voluntary subscription campaign being considered by the University of British Columbia would be a timely step and has much to commend it. The Province of British Columbia has already undertaken to find $10,000,000 for the university in capital costs in the next 10 years. The provincial government in addition has pledged itself to match dollar for dollar whatever further resources the UBC can raise in addition through its own efforts. Dr. Norman A. MacKenzie at the UBC has taken up that challenge. The outcome may be the launching of a $5,000,000 drive in aid of the Point Grey institution aimed at industry and the public generally.

Other than its initial endowment of certain lands in the university area, the UBC came into existence with little more than token support from any quarter. Successive provincial governments did for it what they could, and the present administration relatively more than was accomplished by many of its predecessors. This degree of public assistance has not matched the growing requirements of the institution from year to year even in its capital outlays, and at no time has it been more than a token gesture towards operating costs, met in good part by direct student fees, special research grants and in other ways. An enduring foundation which any institution of higher learning needs to perpetuate its purpose has not been built up.

The UBC will be on the right track if it goes after that feature of the situation now. Some British Columbia industries and some public-spirited individuals have made endowment grants to the university. This in both instances has been the exception and not the rule. Usually when industry has asked for special research, say, on some problem facing it, it has paid the costs of that research only. As a senior body in British Columbia's educational setup, the UBC is entitled to a good deal more support. Through private endowment and industrial donation it should be put in a position to build up a strong financial position, against the needs of the future. Both the level of tuition and student attainment may depend on a thoroughly supported university, and not one perpetually one day's march ahead of the emergent need of the moment.

A strong permanent foundation could do more for the University of British Columbia than all of the public grants it is likely to enjoy in the next half century. The development of such an account would attract private bequests and gifts in this rich and growing province. Industry can be brought to see that, useful as spot research may be at this or that moment, the continuing development of the university is as much in its interest as it is in anyone's. From both sources such a foundation could, and should, be built up. If the Province matches some of this help, so much the better.

Admiral Richard Byrd

DEATH came suddenly this week to Admiral Richard Byrd, and the United States and the world lost one of its most distinguished men. As a polar explorer his name was a household word, especially in connection with the Arctic and Antarctic regions which over a long span of years he had made his particular field. There will be special regret that his passing came in the course of the International Geophysical Year being celebrated during the current 12 months, to which as head of the U.S. naval operation in the Antarctica he was contributing from his vast fund of experience.

The admiral made a trip alone round the world as a boy of 12 and undoubtedly this sparked his interest in exploration. He was in all respects a man of his age. A pioneer of aviation, he made full use of modern means of communication and aerial transit to probe the extent and uncover the secrets of the huge polar ice-caps. He flew over both North and South poles, and in all led two Arctic and five Antarctic expeditions. He spent many months in isolation on the Ross ice barrier making meteorological observations; he charted from the air an immense mileage of unknown territory; he brought vast areas of forbidding land into the range of human knowledge.

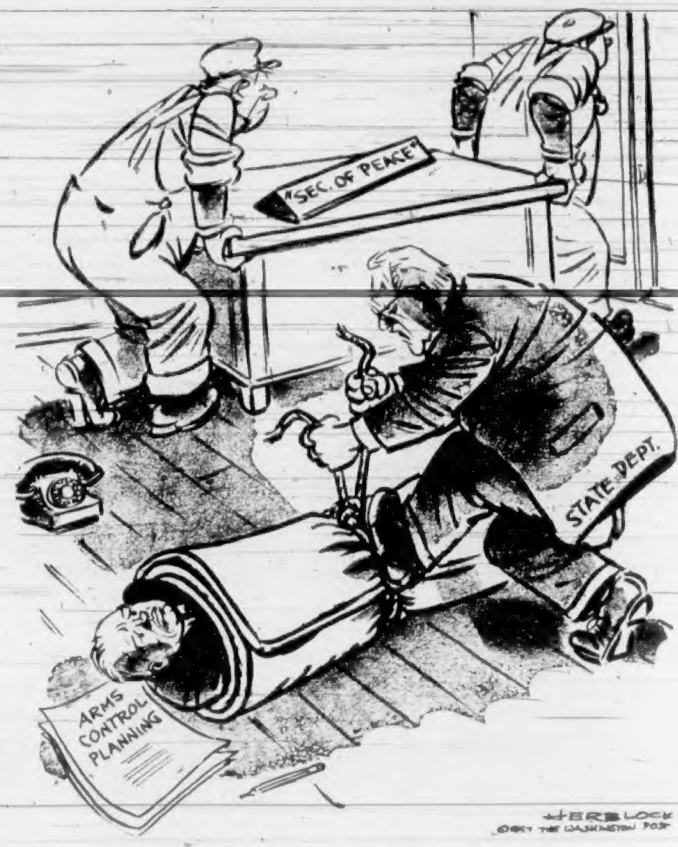
Admiral Byrd was of the true breed of explorer. He had dauntless enthusiasm for the unknown and the passion of the scientist bent on furthering awareness of the physical world he lived in. He added greatly to the sum of human experience and his ventures into Antarctica especially, now a focal point of international attention and multiple survey, left a valuable legacy for posterity. He was of the line of Franklin, Scott and Amundsen, and his name is etched for all time in the annals of exploration. He was an arresting figure and a fine product of the U.S. Navy; a man of whom his country may well be proud.

Time To Review the System

WORK by the British Columbia Electric Company in the first stage of burying its overhead cables in the downtown area is nearing completion for this winter. Excellent progress has been made in laying the conduits and building the control chambers, although the wiring itself cannot be touched at present. At this stage, however, the City itself, working in co-operation with the scheme, should envision what the result will be. Victoria needs not only the burying of its overhead cables, but also a fairly general recasting of its street lighting system. The utility concern is building with an eye to the future. Victoria should do likewise.

This would be the opportune moment to consider a progressive forward step in street lighting, in keeping with what will be the trim appearance of the business section when the cable-laying has been finished. One takes it for granted that City lighting circuits will be fed from the buried cables and that surface props will then be kept to a minimum. Although the idea is disputed in some quarters, it is difficult to see the multiple cluster-light standards as a part of the new system. They were ornamental and useful in their time, but they never have been much contribution to the practical task of lighting the streets and traffic ways.

Modern street lighting apparatus has changed considerably in the intervening years. The aim today is effective street and traffic lighting, with as little intrusion as need be in the matter of standards and obstructions. It may not be possible for this city to hide all the evidences of its own wiring, but an effective lighting system with a minimum of above-ground obstacles — particularly at the sidewalk level — should be attainable. The time to think about that is now, when the opportunity is clearly presented.



"There you are — snug as a bug in a rug"

Thinking Aloud

Gerald Waring

". . . of shoes—and ships—and sealing wax—of cabbages and kings."

By TOM TAYLOR

ONCE it was that music was "it" as far as internationalism is concerned but I rather judge that architecture has displaced music. At least every picture you see of a new skyscraper — a modern building has to reach for the heavens, of course — bears the same trademark. No matter that it's built in Patagonia, Petrograd or Phoenix, Arizona the style is the same.

Matchbox architecture it has been called, disdainfully, but happily architects tend to add a little variety to the scene now, by way of the odd curve or linebreak. A city of skyscrapers can look like a stalagmitic forest, or a bunch of coffins stood on end, but there is an austere attraction to be noted in the collection just the same. A cathedral-like aura in fact even if they are all standing out in the wet and cold.

And, of course, they are functional, the last word in any architectural discussion. I have a suspicion they'll do this word unto death after all putting a frieze round a building or decorating the roof needn't make the inside less functional — but artistic jargon takes a lot of beating down. It wears well, you might say, longer often than the things to which it is applied.

There is basic reason for the bare, unornate structures that confront us wherever a new building rises unphoenix-like from the ashes of its precedessor. There is neither time, money, space nor skill enough to duplicate the works of bygone ages. This is the rub of the matter although it's camouflaged by many a high-sounding treatise on modern architectural art. In an era when wages are high, hours of work short, and hard to come by, and the patience to learn carving almost nil, nothing else can be expected; the mistake lies in not acknowledging these factors.

Each building must reflect the age it belongs to just as must each person. It is not a case of being "modern," as they call it, for of course every style and fashion was modern in its own day. What is needed in fact is a new term to describe the stalagmites, for the word modern is in as much danger of being done to death as functional. There is surely a lack of imagination extant about the terminology of skyscrapers.

No person is modern, it is occasionally to be deduced from the talk of the self-appointed "modernists," unless he was born yesterday, but I was intrigued when I read of Frank Lloyd Wright's objections to a skyscraper capitol for Phoenix, Arizona. He is 84, true enough, but he's been the darling of the advanced thinkers — save the mark if you please — and not long ago he announced plans for a building in New York that was to reach the moon, or at least pretty well up in that direction. Now, however, he wants to enclose the Arizona state buildings in a copper and plastic cocoon, with slits for the sunlight and, presumably, never a drop of rain to mar the weatherman's predictions.

Perhaps he is tiring of the stalagmites he fashioned so well. Last summer I saw a California church of his made of glass and iron poles and this probably accentuates his new flat trend. It was low and full of angles and sharp corners and I fear it left me unmoved. But it is becoming a tourism delight and perhaps that's all that matters. It certainly is a curiosity and, supposedly, it is the last word in artistic expression.

Reports From Ottawa

STEPHEN Angulalik of Perry River has long been what you might call the star pupil of the government's bureau of Eskimo affairs. He's the only native fur trader in the Arctic, and officials here have pointed proudly to Angulalik as convincing evidence that Eskimos can adjust themselves to the white man's ways.

Three years ago the government honored Angulalik with the award of a Coronation Medal, in recognition of his "outstanding leadership" and his "ability to acquire the new aptitudes needed to share in the work of modern Arctic development."

Two months ago Corp. E. E. Jones of the RCMP detachment at Cambridge Bay got a letter from Angulalik. It said that a difference of opinion had arisen with another Eskimo, one Otoetok, and had been settled with a snow knife — one of those long straight blades the Eskimos use to cut blocks for igloos. Angulalik wrote that he regretted this very much, especially as Otoetok was now dead.

Corp. Jones went to Perry River, made an investigation, and arrested Angulalik on a charge of murder. Angulalik is now in jail at Yellowknife, and Jones is sledding along the Arctic coast rounding up witnesses for (1) the inquest; (2) the preliminary hearing, and (3) the trial.

Angulalik is the tycoon of the Arctic. He has a reputation of being a very smart Eskimo. He runs his trading post with as much business sense as any Scots factor of the Hudson's Bay Company. For example, there are regular sales at Angulalik's store, with hard-to-sell goods bearing signs in Eskimo syllabics saying: "This cheap. Buy now."

Once when some black umbrellas seemed nailed to his shelves, he put white cloth on them and sold them as camouflage for hunting seals. Then there was the time he ordered 40 dozen of what he thought were king-sized coffee cups. He sold them as such, too.

He speaks practically no English. Ordering supplies from the Hudson's Bay Company depot at Edmonton, he uses an old typewriter to copy catalogue numbers, or the labels of cans and boxes. So sometimes the shippers have to figure out what Angulalik wants when he asks for "10 made in England" or "24 keep in a cool place."

Angulalik — which means "big man" in Eskimo — is a chunky, toothy man of about 60 whose passion for the white man's ways offends some Eskimos. One of these once sneered that Angulalik would starve without a rifle. This angered Angulalik so that he set out to hunt polar bear, armed only with a harpoon.

His idea was to prove that he was still a mighty hunter, Eskimo style. He found a bear, thrust his harpoon and missed. The bear didn't. Now Angulalik has a favorite side on which to sit.

It may have been some taunting like that which precipitated the quarrel with Otoetok, a man of 67 years. Whatever happened seems to have taken place during a New Year's party, at which the natives were drinking home brew. Otoetok is reported to have died two days later. It seems to have been then that Angulalik felt he had a responsibility to notify the police and the Hudson's Bay Company.

The full story won't be known until Jones arrives in Yellowknife with his witnesses for the inquest and preliminary hearing. Then the Crown prosecutor will decide how to proceed. But Angulalik's lawyer, John Parker, has a reputation of never having had an Eskimo client hanged.

Sharing the Seaway

Toll Plan Difficulty

By MARTIN S. HAYDEN

WASHINGTON — Rising costs which endanger the whole pay-as-you-use plan of St. Lawrence seaway financing are haunting Canadian-American builders of the waterway and threatening a bitter fight in the U.S. Congress.

troubles are these facts:

1. Unexpected engineering problems, plus inflated contracting and interest costs, threaten to double the charges shippers will have to pay if the project is to keep its self-liquidating character.

2. Canadian determination to start charging tolls for present free passage through the Welland Canal is exciting midwestern congressmen who regard the new Welland works as a Canadian government responsibility.

3. Required new legislation to give the St. Lawrence Seaway Development Corporation $35,000,000 additional U.S. borrowing authority, already opposed by traditional seaway enemies crying "we told you so", now faces other complications from prospective users worried lest their ships be priced off the waterway.

The complications last week plagued officials of the development corporation and its Canadian counterpart, the St. Lawrence Seaway Authority, when they met to wrestle once more with the still-unsettled issue of tolls.

At the end of the meeting Lionel Chevrier, the Canadian authority administrator, and Lewis G. Castle, the U.S. corporation head, were saying only that the toll issue is "complicated" and still "unsettled." From behind their meeting scene came an admission that perhaps the two negotiating teams would reach no agreement, and that shippers would pay two toll systems, one for American passage and a second at a different rate for use of Canadian sections of the international works.

Both Castle and Chevrier would prefer that the toll issue stay where it is — behind the closed doors of their discussion rooms — at least until the U.S. Congress gets through approving the additional money needed if the waterway is to be officially opened in midsummer, 1959. Their hopes, however, got a letdown today from an old seaway friend, Rep. John A. Blatnik (D., Minn.).

"There is no way," said Blatnik, "to keep any congressman from asking any question he wants when the new money bill comes up and I'm sure some of them will want to talk tolls."

Questioning will bring out figures that Blatnik and supporters of his new money bill have decided must be "met honestly."

Original estimates of a total $263,000,000 Canadian-American cost, on which the self-liquidating toll plan was based, now may go as high as $350,000,000. That in turn would boost required annual revenues from an estimated $11,600,000 to $26,000,000 or more.

To "why" costs are up, the builders have three answers:

Previously undetected rock and hard clay formations that have complicated U.S. channel building, general cost inflation and higher interest charges that have the Canadian authority paying from 4 to 4½ per cent and the Americans 3¼ per cent on their borrowings.

Harder to answer is what can be done about it.

Admitted by the waterway's best friends is the fact that, even against increased rates on competitive transport lines, St. Lawrence users cannot afford to pay twice the rates envisaged in the original self-liquidating plan. Under the 1953 liquidation plan, it is recalled, the Cleveland-Pittsburgh area was calculated as the "break-even" point at which shippers from the Atlantic coast could begin to save on overland rail and truck costs.

"Moving west from that area toward Detroit, Milwaukee and Duluth," one of the waterway's old advocates said today, "the saving would increase. But every 20 cents added to the seaway tolls moves that break-even point farther west and, if tolls go high enough, they will price grain, ore and coal right off the boats."

Tied in with the rate unhappiness is the Welland problem. As presented by Chevrier at the two-nation conferences, Canada's theory is that the $25,000,000 it is spending on the Welland passage will benefit many ships coming from the west but turning around before they get to the new works which are the seaway proper; those ships, the Canadians say, should help pay for what they use.

The immediate answer from American congressmen is that the United States is spending $115,000,000 enlarging the Sault locks and deepening connecting channels in the Detroit and St. Clair rivers and in Lake St. Clair to permit ocean shipping all the way west. If Canada expects to be repaid for Welland expenditures, they argue, then why shouldn't the United States start charging St. Lawrence seaway tolls to recover these expenditures?

German Unification Is Theme

By CHARLES M. McCANN
United Press Staff Correspondent

PRESSURE on Soviet Russia to agree to the reunification of Germany is likely to increase steadily in the next few months.

West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer has made the unification issue the No. 1 topic in all discussions with foreign governments.

He is reminding the Soviet government at every opportunity that unification to him is an urgent matter, and that relations between Russia and West Germany never can be normal until West and East Germany are joined.

At the same time, Adenauer has started to seek the support of the United States and other Allied governments in new demands that the 12-year seperation of the two parts of Germany be ended.

Considerable emphasis was put on reunification in the talks in Washington between West German Foreign Minister Heinrich von Brentano and Secretary of State Dulles.

A committee of American, German, British and French experts started a study of the unification problem in Washington last week.

This committee was organized as the result of the Brentano-Dulles talks. A joint communique issued at the end of their talks said that unification remained a "fundamental objective."

It was announced in Bonn, the West German capital, that German ambassadors to the United States, Canada and all West European governments have been summoned to meet in West Berlin on April 24.

There is no doubt that unification will be the chief topic for discussion at this meeting.

Also, the fact that the meeting is to be held in Berlin, instead of Bonn, is a fresh reminder to the Russians that Adenauer looks forward to the day when Berlin again will be the all-German capital.

It is indicated that Adenauer will press the unification question when foreign ministers of members of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization meet in Bonn on May 2.

Immediately after that Adenauer is expected to visit President Eisenhower in Washington.

This meeting may well result in a decision to make a demand on the Soviet government that it agree to a realistic discussion of unification.

There is talk in Bonn that West Germany, which is not a member of the United Nations, may get Allied governments to raise the unification issue in the UN Assembly next fall.

The big obstacle to any agreement is that the Russians will not agree to free elections under a unification agreement.

West Germany is a prosperous country of more than 50,000,000 people. East Germany is a drab, depressed area in which 17,000,000 people are held under the subjection of Communist puppet leaders and the Russian army. The East German people once numbered 18,000,000. But 1,000,000 of them have fled to Western Germany and the number of refugees is growing.

Promotion Rat Race

By GREGORY CLARK

A YOUNG friend of mine who has been four years in the sales department of a large Canadian corporation has recently been promoted to a new job as public relations assistant to a vice-president of the company. I asked him how he was enjoying his new task.

"It's wonderful," he declared. "Nobody behind me pushing."

Now, that is a new angle I haven't run into before.

"It isn't your seniors," he explained, "demanding more from you, who are the real problem to young people starting on their careers in big organizations. It is those behind you, or those at your own level, who keep shoving all the time.

"In the early stages of your progress it is a scramble amongst a whole level of your fellow workers. I don't say that our generation are all ambitious and pushing. As a matter of fact, maybe the majority of them are here job holders. But there are always enough of the ambitious type, like myself, to make it a battle. So far, it has never been my seniors who troubled me. It has been those around and behind me, pushing."

"How many of them?" I enquired.

He reflected a moment.

"Out of the eighteen in my former department," he said, "there were four."

"And you outpushed them?" I suggested.

"I sure did," he said, gleefully.

"Well, you admit," I checked, "that it was their pushing that made you push hard enough to be chosen for this new job. What happens now? With nobody pushing you, won't you lose your push?"

"No," he said. "I'm in the clear. I am out of the rat race. All I can see now is that I have to keep pushing until I can get in line for one of the junior executive jobs, oh, say in ten years."

"Shouldn't all the junior executives," I queried, "be a little uneasy from now on?"

"They should be," agreed my young friend.

"Then, it's still a rat race," I asserted.

"Not a rat," he protested. "I have been promoted to weasel. And some day, by golly, I am going to rise to be a mink."

School By-Law

The Greater Victoria School Building by-law was obviously rejected and plainly defeated by our tax-burdened home-owners — in spite of the all-out pressure upon the unorganized citizens by the school board, and by the labor bosses and by our innocent but badly misled PTAs.

The passage of this unwise by-law by a mere margin of .63 per cent is a definite rebuke to our exuberant school trustees. Therefore they have no moral right to proceed with or act upon this $4,470,000 by-law any further. During the referendum campaign the school board took an unfair and unethical advantage of our honest and responsible taxpayers. No sensible person is against education or the necessary classrooms. But when the architect demands $40,000 to design a simple school building, or when the labor boss blusters and shrieks for $3 an hour for a carpenter, $4 for an electrician, $5 for a plumber — then the honest taxpayer begins to shake in his shoes with fear, and blindly revolts. He is a prey at bay.

I feel our responsible citizens of Greater Victoria — the home-owners, the unorganized citizens — should take prompt steps to protest this back-crushing tax burden to our provincial cabinet and, if necessary, then direct to the lieutenant-governor of our province. This by-law should be thrown out.

We have reached the ceiling. Let's come down to some sanity. This vicious tax spiral will eventually bankrupt us all. It will destroy what we already possess.

IVAN HANCHARD, PhD.

Tail Wags the Dog

Now that the recent "second" vote on the school building problem has become history it is time we taxpayers took stock and reviewed our position.

We already, a few weeks back, voted "no" in terms that were quite definite and positive. Not content with that the school board had the gall to ask for another expression of opinion at great expense and carried their ideas with just 100 votes to spare. Those who voted "no" should now demand a third vote in order to again change the verdict and stop this colossal waste. Especially is this necessary when the City of Victoria with far the greatest financial portion of the burden, voted emphatically "no." The whole situation is utterly ridiculous when one-third of the voters eligible to cast can burden the whole with such expense.

The city council should also wake up and realize by this recent verdict where they will land the city if ever they are foolish enough to have a Greater Victoria. The evidence is now already there that the outside will "wag the old man"—in other words the "tail will wag the dog."

Understanding Politics

Sunday afternoon it was my privilege to sit in on the Canadian Labor Congress Workshop. The topic for the two-day session is "Political Education." The session I was able to attend was a discussion of "Party Politics," led by Professor Dave Corbett of the University of B.C. The talk dealt with why party politics are necessary in our system of government and why party discipline.

I was intensely interested in the discussion and very much impressed with the understanding and sincerity of the various labor representatives who joined in the debate. They showed a wide knowledge of the problems of government and a real desire to gain further understanding of how our country is governed.

It is a good sign for Canada when the workers and their leaders are taking such an intelligent interest in our political life. I wish that more of the folk who are critical of labor and of the part which it plays in our lives could have attended the conference.

Also, I wish that other organizations would, besides urging people to get out and vote, make similar steps to see that the people of Canada are given the chance to understand the workings of our political system.

Exploring B.C.

For some time I have been expecting to see in your correspondence column letters from some of the many residents of B.C. who take exception to the way in which our government is shirking its responsibility to investigate the potentialities of the province.

I have no quarrel with Dr. Wenner-Gren and I feel sure he is a good citizen of his country, but why should the government seek to shift the responsibility upon individuals or firms?

Is B.C. so poor that we cannot do our own exploration, and at the same time so rich, in this election year, that it can afford to subsidize house owners by an amount which would pay for a large part of the investigation?

Ambassador Says:

Canada-Egypt Tension 'No Basis for Concern'

CAIRO (CP) — Tense relations between Canada and Egypt over incidents in the Gaza Strip appear to be easing.

E. H. Norman, Canadian ambassador here, said Wednesday after emerging from a meeting with officials of the United Nations Emergency Force.

"I am aware of rumors of difficulties concerning the arrival in Egypt of the remainder of the Canadian contingent for the UNEF," he said. "Responsible UNEF officials have, meanwhile, assured me that there is no basis for concern on this point." UNEF. They are part of a 105-

An Egyptian spokesman in Gaza, however, said Danish troops had fired the volley that resulted in one death.

There was no definite word from Egyptian, UNEF or Canadian sources as to when the new arrivals would make the last lap to Abu Suweir, supply base for the Gaza area.

The ambassador's statement gave hope that what started out to look like another incident similar to that of the Queen's Own Rifles may be destined for satisfactory clarification within the next few days.

Canadians had started to look upon developments within the last few days as the final straw from the Egyptians, who seemed to want to make them the whipping boys of the UNEF, with charges hanging from "imperialism" against Canadian government leaders to irresponsible handling of firearms by Canadian troops.

Eisenhower to Blame European Press Agrees

LONDON (UP)—Newspapers in Britain and France angrily assailed President Eisenhower Wednesday for policies which they said had created a new Middle East crisis that could explode into a world war.

Anglo-French press blamed Eisenhower personally for the tension caused by Egyptian President Gamal Abdel Nasser's decision to take over administration of the Gaza Strip.

The newspaper said the president set the stage for the new crisis by insisting that Israel follow the example of Britain and France in withdrawing from territory seized in last fall's invasions of Egypt.

Eisenhower never before had been so bitterly criticized by the Anglo-French press, not even during the outburst of anti-Americanism that followed U.S. refusal to support the Sinai-Suez attacks.

USUAL TARGET

Secretary of State John Foster Dulles usually has been the target of personal attacks on Washington leaders by the European press.

Newspapers of both left and right assailed the president.

British cartoonists depicted him as a dollar-backed wizard conjuring the world "back where we started," or as a shepherd belatedly recognizing Nasser as a wolf in sheep's clothing.

The Liberal Manchester Guardian said the crisis might force the United States to use "the weapons at hand . . . diplomatic, economic and—only in the last resort—military."

"It would be good to be sure that President Eisenhower and Mr. Dulles are clear in their own minds about how to use them . . ." the newspaper said.

"A war, once it starts in the Middle East, may not stop there."

EVERYONE SUFFERS

In Paris, the left-wing Combat assailed the President's Middle East policies.

These incidents re-establish that when the United States imposes its will on other peoples and makes policy for the rest of the world, everyone suffers," it said.

Police Seize Drafts

VANCOUVER (CP) — Bank drafts worth $357,000 have been seized by Vancouver police searching for two expert Montreal safe-crackers.

Detectives missed the men when they raided a motel Tuesday, but they arrested three women whom they are holding for investigation.

The seizure and arrests resulted from co-operation between Vancouver authorities and eastern police trying to capture the men who blew open a Trans-Canada Air Lines safe in Montreal's Mount Royal Hotel, March 4.

Five books contained bank drafts for U.S. currency. A detective classified all the drafts as "good as gold."

In addition to the bank drafts, police seized $2,000 in cash, a pistol and ammunition.

U.S. Cuts Firms Off Export List

WASHINGTON (AP) — The commerce department Wednesday denied U.S. export privileges to 11 firms and individuals in Britain, Canada and the United States for the illegal trans-shipment of U.S. goods to Communist-dominated countries. Value of the shipments was placed at more than $1,250,000.

The denial order named William Kurt Samuel Wallersteiner and his firms, Watford Chemical Company Ltd., and E. Tingley and Son, Ltd., all of London; Watford Chemical Co. (Canada) Ltd. of Toronto, and Watford Chemical Corporation of New York City.

The department's bureau of foreign commerce said that in 1951 Wallersteiner, operating through a Swiss corporation under his control, contracted with a firm in East Germany to supply it with chemicals, drugs and dyestuffs.

The bureau said the Wallersteiner group obtained some of the materials in the United States "by falsely representing customs that the shipments were ultimately destined for Britain or Canada.

"After the goods arrived in Britain, either direct or via Canada, the group caused them to be trans-shipped to East Germany and Gdynia, Poland, in violation of U.S. security export controls."

Ford Leads Money Winners

CHICAGO (AP)—Doug Ford, the 1955 PGA champion continues to pace the money winners on the professional golf circuit, but youngster Arnold Palmer is impressively in second place.

Figures released by the Professional Golfers' Association of America, show that Ford's total is $5,364.

Palmer, from Latrobe, Pa., who won the Houston open, Trophy race, with an average of 1,116 strokes over 16 rounds. Ford collected $9,762.

Jay Hebert, an improved player this year, is third with $7,415. Ed Furgol, fourth, $6,011 and veteran Jimmy Demaret, making an impressive showing, is fifth with $5,364.

Ted Kroll is second with 70.17 and third with 70.47.

Demaret is leading the Vardon Cup competition with 312 7-15. Ford is second with 349 1-15 and Cary Middlecoff, third with 480.

Campbell May Turn Club Pro

TORONTO (CP) — Canada will have its first professional curler, if Don Campbell of Avonlea, Sask., accepts an offer from the Royal Canadian Curling Club here to become club professional.

Officials of the club disclosed their offer Wednesday. Campbell is said to be interested in the proposal.

Don is one of four curling brothers, all from Avonlea, who have represented Saskatchewan in the Dominion curling championships for the last four years, and won it once. They finished second in this year's competition.

If Campbell became club professional, his duties would be similar to that of a golf pro, club officials said. He would be a curling instructor and his services would be available to other Toronto clubs.

Scoring his 19th straight victory as a professional, Spider Webb, right, pounded out a unanimous 10-round decision over Wilf Greaves in their nationally-televised middleweight bout at Chicago last night. Here, Webb lands a looping right to the head of the former Canadian belter. — (AP Photofax.)

Stamps Clinch Berth; Amerks Drub Warriors

Calgary Stampeders clinched the third and final playoff berth in the eastern division of the Western Hockey League last night by outgunning Brandon Regals, 7-6, at Calgary.

The win coupled with Winnipeg Warrior's 6-2 defeat at the hands of Seattle Americans in the American city, left the Stamps with a 14-point lead over the Warriors, who have only six games left to play and could win a maximum of 12 points.

Veteran forward Enio Schiazzi led the Stampeders with three goals, his 23rd, 24th and 25th of the season. Other Calgary scorers were Archie Scott, Sid Finney, Ray Barry and Milan Marcetta. Brandon marksmen were Norm Johnson and Bob Chorley, with two apiece. Len Haley and Don Raleigh.

Score was tied, 3-3, at the end of the first period, but the Stampeders moved ahead, 5-4, in a ragged second frame. They built up a three-goal lead in the third period but the Regals cut the margin a single goal with one second remaining.

Len Haley drew a 10-minute misconduct penalty in the first period for slashing at a goal judge in protest over a goal by Schiazzi.

At Seattle, the Americans scored three times in the third period to pull away after getting a battle from the desperate Warriors in the first two periods. The victory gave the Americans a seven-point lead over second-place New Westminster Royals in the Western division, and the Seattle team needs to win only three of its remaining six games to clinch the title.

Eighteen penalties were handed out in the game, all minors.

Gord Sinclair boosted Seattle's lead, 4-2, early in the third period. Guyle Fielder, who set a new league scoring record of 112 points, drew an assist and scored himself 10 minutes later.

Eddie Dorohoy picked up the Americans' final goal.

Ray Kinasewich and Lionel Repp scored for Seattle in the first period, with Cec Hoekstra replying for the Warriors. Barton Bradley of the Americans and Winnipeg's George Ford exchanged goals in the second.

GUYLE FIELDER
... amazing record

Collects Goal, Assist

Fielder Sets Record; Boosts Total to 112

Centre Guyle Fielder of the Seattle Americans broke the all-time Western Hockey League individual scoring record last night, picking up a goal and an assist in the Americans' 6-2 triumph over Winnipeg Warriors at Seattle.

Fielder broke Bronco Horvath's 110-point mark with an assist on a goal by Gord Sinclair in the third period. Many rinkside observers questioned the assist, but Fielder gained a clearcut claim to the record 10 minutes later with his 30th goal of the season.

Fielder now has an amazing 82 assists for the season, and his point total is tops in professional hockey.

Phil Maloney, of Vancouver Canucks who helped demolish Victoria Cougars 7-2 in Vancouver Tuesday night, is in second place in the scoring race with 89 points on 38 goals and 51 assists.

Eddie Dorohoy and Ray Kinasewich of the Americans are next in line, followed by Sid Finney of Calgary Stampeders.

Coach Colin Kilburn still leads the Victoria Cougars, and his total of 61 points on 28 goals and 33 assists is good enough for ninth place in the standings. Doug Anderson is 13th with 57 points.

Webb Extends Victory Skein With Decision Over Greaves

Fourth-ranked Spider Webb of Chicago scored his 19th straight victory with a 10-round unanimous decision Wednesday night over battling Wilf Greaves, Edmonton now fighting out of Pittsburgh under the guidance of Jake Mintz.

Webb, while winning, looked like anything but a 6-to-1 favorite and was booed several times by the crowd. The 24-year-old former Olympic champion who has hopes of getting a shot at the middleweight title soon was hard pressed in the middle rounds.

Greaves, who has had only 18 professional bouts but who has already fought middleweight champion Gene Fullmer and high-ranking "Tiger" Jones, had his best round in the eighth when he stunned Webb with a rapid flurry of hard punches.

However, Webb had little trouble with his tiring opponent in the ninth and 10th rounds and received the nod from both officials and the referee.

Bruins Tie for Second; Mackell Sinks Rangers

Boston Bruins moved into a second-place tie with the idle Montreal Canadiens and prevented New York Rangers from clinching the fourth and final playoff spot in the National Hockey League last night by edging the Rangers, 2-1, at New York.

The defeat also snapped the Rangers' eight-game unbeaten streak at Madison Square Garden. Although the loss was a big disappointment to the Rangers, they can still "back" into the fourth playoff berth tonight if the Canadiens beat fifth-place Toronto Maple Leafs at Montreal.

Fleming Mackell climaxed a great comeback by the Bruins when he scored his 21st goal of the season with just 22 seconds remaining in the game to give Boston the win. Leo Labine picked up the other Boston goal and assisted on Mackell's effort for his 13th goal and 27th assist of the season.

Gump Worsley was forced to make 32 stops for the Rangers, who were outshot 14-2 in the third period. Don Simmons received good protection in the Boston nets and made only 17 stops.

The game marked the return to action of Jerry Toppazzini, who hadn't played with the Bruins since he suffered multiple fractures of the face in a collision with Ted Lindsay of the Wings Feb. 7.

Cumberland Scores But City Clubs Lose

VANCOUVER — Third-seeded Cumberland Toppers scored an easy victory in their opening game of the 12th annual B.C. high school basketball championships, but the other two Vancouver Island representatives were eliminated from championship play in the first round.

The Toppers, winners of the Vancouver Island title, thumped Prince George, 51-20, in the opening game of the tournament as Bob Colling, winner of the Island most-valuable-player award, dropped in 18 points.

However, the other two Island entries did not fare as well. Oak Bay High dropped a 45-42 decision to John Oliver of Vancouver, and Esquimalt Dockers were trounced, 72-20, by first-seeded Vancouver College.

Next game for the Toppers is against Chilliwack today. The lightly regarded Chilliwack team registered one of the most stunning upsets in the history of the tournament yesterday by downing defending champion Lester Pearson, 60-54.

Chilliwack led all the way. Lester Pearson rallied to pull within three points at 57-54, but the Fraser Valley school scored three foul shots in the closing seconds to clinch the win.

In other first-round games, Mageo edged Abbotsford, 30-29; West Vancouver defeated Kamloops, 43-36; North Surrey blasted Kelowna, 44-21, and Princess Margaret beat Castlegar, 36-25.

Cumberland—Mike Perkins 12, Don Butterfield 2, Bob Colling 18, Glen Colling 5, Jim Tavernor 4, John Tomson 2, Bill Mooney 6, Bob Mooney 12. Total—64.

Nanaimo Rink Still Unbeaten In Western Canada Playoffs

SASKATOON—Mrs. Marg Fuller's Nanaimo rink retained its unblemished record here Wednesday by besting Alberta, 10-8, for its fourth victory in the Western Canada women's curling championships.

In the other fifth-round game played yesterday, Manitoba picked up its first victory in the four-day competition by edging Saskatchewan, 9-7.

Results left Saskatchewan and Alberta tied for second place with 2-2 records and Manitoba and Quebec, idle Wednesday afternoon, tied for last place with one victory apiece. Quebec gained its first victory by edging Manitoba, 13-10, in the fourth round.

Sixth, seventh and eighth rounds of double round-robin competition are scheduled today with the final rounds set Friday.

B.C. came strongly in the last three ends to maintain its undefeated record yesterday. The Nanaimo rink counted five in the final three ends after trailing most of the way.

Manitoba, one down playing the 12th, scored three to defeat Saskatchewan, represented by Mrs. Phyllis Baldwin's Saskatoon rink. Mrs. Baldwin is a sister-in-law of Matt Baldwin, who guided Alberta to the Canadian championship.

Pirates Win Fifth Straight; Yanks, Shantz Lose Thriller

Pittsburgh Pirates, away to a fast start in the National League race a year ago only to find their true level in mid-season, remained undefeated in the young 1957 spring exhibition baseball series Wednesday by grabbing a 10-inning, 3-1 victory from Boston Red Sox.

Two runs in the top half of the 10th inning enabled the fast-moving Pirates, picked by many observers as a strong contender for National League honors, to score their fifth straight victory.

Brooklyn Dodgers continued to improve at the plate, scoring four runs in the first inning off Chicago White Sox ace, Billy Pierce, and coasting to a 9-4 triumph. Pee Wee Reese, Gil Hodges and rookie Dick Gray all smashed homers for the Brooks.

Cincinnati Redlegs showed they have lost none of their old-time power, collecting five runs on a seven-hit barrage in the eighth inning in gaining an 11-4 win over Milwaukee.

A home run by Rip Repulski in the bottom of the 12th inning off Bobby Shantz enabled the Philadelphia Phillies to score a 6-5 win over New York Yankees. Shantz had pitched three scoreless innings before yielding the game-winning blow.

B.C. Quartet Tie for Lead

British Columbia and Saskatchewan were tied for the lead in the Canadian Legion curling championships at Winnipeg Wednesday night after six rounds of the nine-round, three-day competition.

The B.C. rink, skipped by Joe McKinnon of Kamloops, lost its first game, 11-6, to Alberta in the fourth round but came back to defeat Manitoba, 10-6, and Quebec, 13-6.

Sharing first place with B.C. was the Saskatchewan quartet with five victories in six starts. Saskatchewan beat Manitoba, 11-10; Alberta, 11-8, and Prince Edward Island, 12-9.

Manitoba is in third place with four victories against two losers. Also taking part were rinks from New Brunswick, Ontario and Nova Scotia.

Rocket Unconcerned About 500th Goal

By W. R. WHEATLEY

MONTREAL (CP)—Maurice (Rocket) Richard, amazing right-winger of Montreal Canadiens who is only nine goals away from the 500 mark, isn't unduly concerned about approaching such a fantastic National Hockey League record.

"The way people talk they seem to think I'm going to stop right there at 500," said the philosophical 35-year-old Rocket, Wednesday.

"Why not 505 or 508 or something else? It seems to me that 500 is just a big round figure."

It doesn't seem likely Richard will hit the magic 500-round figure this season. His club has only five games left.

But no matter when it comes, one of the biggest applauders will be none other than President Clarence Campbell of the NHL. It was Campbell who cracked down with a heavy suspension on Richard two years ago for an explosive outburst in Boston Garden.

Out of the excitement engendered by this action against Montreal's hockey idol the infamous Montreal Forum riot was born.

Campbell, nevertheless, has always had great personal admiration for Richard's outstanding ability.

"I think he is absolutely fabulous," said Campbell, Wednesday, in speaking of Richard's crowding the glittering 500.

He certainly typifies this in his dedication to the game. The thing that makes him great is the burning interest and fire that stimulate him. His ability is inside him.

"I can't conceive of him being ordinary in anything. As for his temperament, it's a question whether without it he could do all the things in hockey he accomplishes so well."

Richard's present 491 goals were scored in 852 games of regular season play. He is finishing his 13th season. Because of injuries and illness he played the full schedule in only seven of those 15 seasons. He has scored 101 in 62 games of the Stanley Cup playoffs.

Closest to Richard's figure is Gordie Howe of Detroit Red Wings, who has 350. Howe will be 29 on March 31.

The long-eclipsed NHL mark was 324, held by Nels Stewart of Montreal Maroons of past years. Richard broke that record Nov. 8, 1952.

He has scored 31 goals in 58 games this season, missing seven games because of an operation on his elbow.

What about next season — after he has passed his 36th birthday, Aug. 4? How long will he continue playing?

"I wouldn't even guess. You can never tell what is going to happen. Right now I feel fine and my legs are in good shape, too."

Nanaimo Lands Allan; Proctor Makes Switch

Nanaimo Timbermen, who won their first Canadian lacrosse championship last year in Toronto, came up with their first big player news of the 1957 season yesterday by signing three players, including classy Bobby Allan.

JAKE PROCTOR
...New Westminster coach

In squelching rumors that the speedy Peterborough import might not return to the West coast this season, the Timbermen landed one of their key players in their bid to retain the Mann Cup. Allan won the Inter-City Lacrosse League scoring crown last season with a record total of 127 points, including a whopping 89 goals.

Also signed yesterday were coach Harry Wipper, the rugged import defenceman who proved a big factor in Timbermen's cup triumph, and speedy Harold Fox, who didn't play last season. Fox starred for Indians for two seasons and was one of the fastest players in the league.

MATTER OF TIME

Club president Doug Rafter announced yesterday that the Timbermen are negotiating with several Nanaimo-born players and are expected to have no trouble in signing them. Rafter also said that Barry Ashbee may join brother Don as a member of the Timbermen this season.

The younger Ashbee, a star for Barrie Juniors in the Ontario Hockey League, has played junior lacrosse in Eastern Canada.

There was other player news from the Mainland. Colorful Jake Proctor, who coached Vancouver Pilseners last season, has signed to coach New Westminster Salmonbellies and it's expected that several members of the Vancouver club will follow Proctor to the Royal City.

This year's edition of the Pilseners, who will be composed mostly of last season's Canadian junior champion Mt. Pleasant Legion club, have announced ... Stan Joseph and Bill Barbour.

Joseph won the league's top netminder award last season while the rugged Barbour, who finished third in goals scored, was named the "rookie of the year."

RULE CHANGES

Meanwhile, league secretary-treasurer Tom Gordon said this week the league will give a 10-game trial to six rule changes proposed last month by the Victoria Shamrocks. Gordon said the changes were designed to help speed up the game and make lacrosse more attractive to the spectators.

Included in the changes are:

When minor penalties are assessed in equal number against both teams at the same time, substitutes for the penalized players shall be permitted immediately.

If, while a team is short-handed, the opposing clubscores a goal, the penalty shall automatically terminate.

If a second player of any team is penalized while another player of the same team is serving a penalty, the penalty time of the second player shall not commence until the first penalty has elapsed.

In the last five minutes of each quarter, a team in possession of the ball has one minute in which to take a direct shot on goal.

PAT McCORMICK

United States' two-time Olympic diving champion who announced her retirement shortly after returning from the 1956 games in Melbourne. Pat McCormick has decided to turn professional and will make her pro debut in Los Angeles early next month. The 26-year-old diving queen said that since she retired "the offers to turn professional have been so good it would be ridiculous to turn them down."

Fabulous U.S. Strongman Plans Dignified Weightlifting Career

By BOB MYERS

LOS ANGELES (AP)—The strongest man in the world, Paul Anderson of Georgia, was merely "warming up" for more difficult deeds as he practised for his new career as a professional lifter of things.

The warm-up was really nothing or so said America's Olympic Games champion somewhat apologetically.

He simply lifted, en masse, 29 normal-sized Brownie Scouts and one attractive teen-ager. The stunt with never a grunt, was a sample of what this affable and highly articulate athlete intends to do as a professional.

Wednesday, after a midnight flight to Atlanta, Paul took his first official step as a pro. He flew there to autograph copies of his book, "Paul Anderson's Easy Steps to Giant Strength."

Anderson, 24, a dedicated athlete, believes weight lifting is the foundation of greatness in any line of sport.

As a pro he will dramatize weight lifting, something that has not been done since the turn of the century and the heyday of such a man as the Great Sandow.

"And as a matter of fact," presentation of the talents of the strongest man the world has ever known."

and his came from Paul's manager, Howard Cantonwine, a former wrestler. "Paul has spent about seven years giving his time and talent to the United States state department, the Amateur Athletic Union, the Olympic people.

"I think it is only fair that he now make a living for himself."

Cantonwine emphasized that Paul will not turn wrestler and that plans are for "a dignified

English Team Winds Up Tour

CAPETOWN (Reuters) — The touring English MCC cricket club completed its five-month tour of South Africa Tuesday with a decisive victory over the combined South African Universities by an innings and 28 runs.

It was MCC's 15th win in 22 matches. The team drew six games on the tour and lost only three, including two tests.

Final scores were: Combined Universities 142 runs and 165 runs; MCC 335.

A small crowd saw the Universities team lose its remaining five wickets in 95 minutes Tuesday for the addition of 102 runs to the overnight score.

plans for the

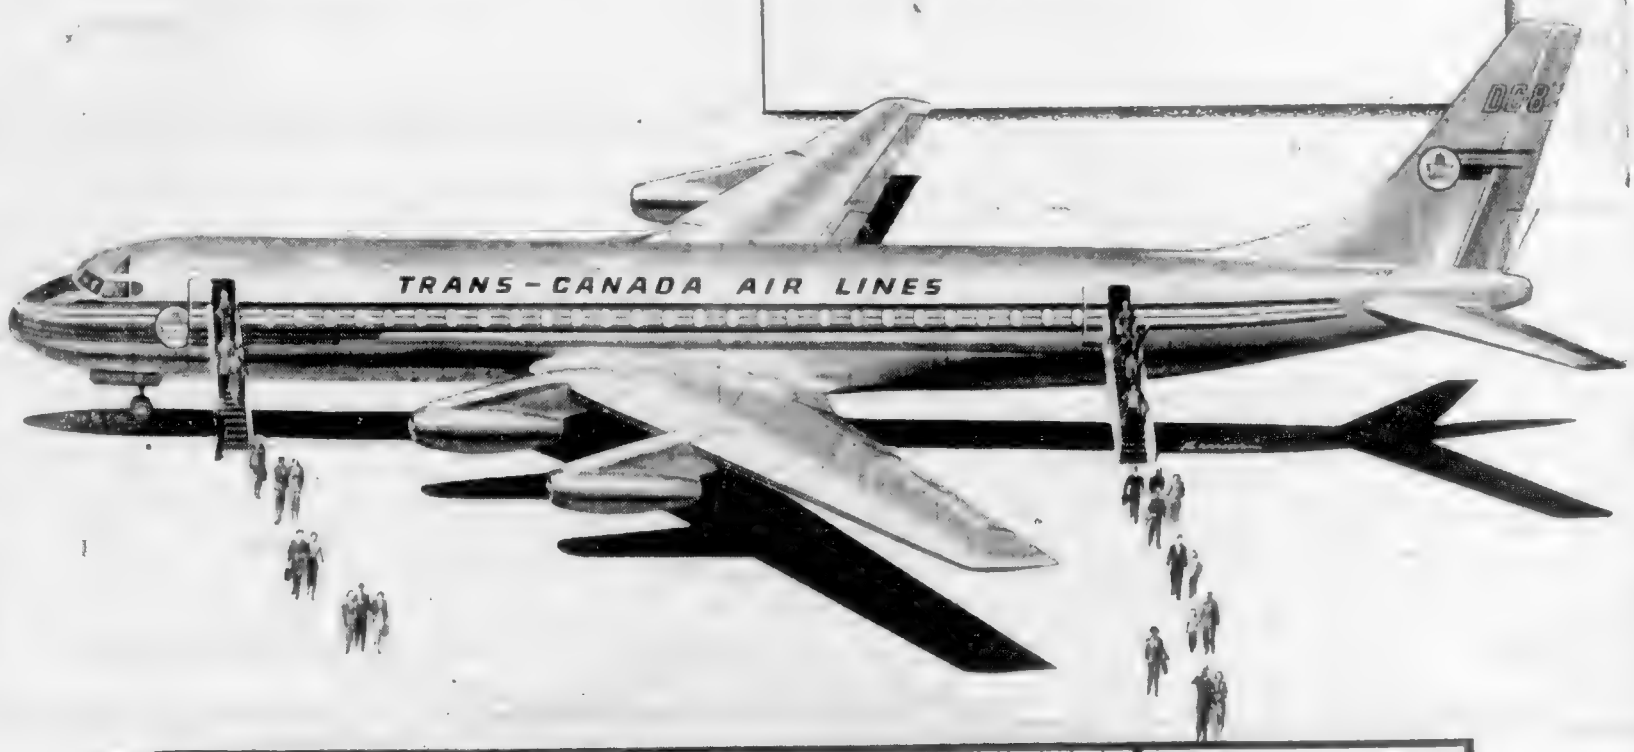
JET AGE

Giant DC-8 jet-liners to bring startling advances in long-distance air travel

A NEW WORLD OF AIR TRAVEL is on your horizon . . . the era of the jet airliner. After extensive investigation and evaluation of every type of long-range aircraft expected to be available in the next few years, TCA has ordered a fleet of intercontinental Douglas DC-8 airliners. They are to be powered by Rolls-Royce Conway turbo-jet engines.

This decision, part of TCA's planned expansion, is a major step. Each DC-8 will represent an investment of $5½ millions. The new planes are expected to enter service in 1960, and will bring dramatic changes on long-distance routes. Carrying up to 122 passengers at a cruising speed of 550 miles per hour, these big planes will cut flying times by almost half on TCA's trans-continental and trans-Atlantic routes. The DC-8's will set new standards in comfort and quiet, vibrationless flight.

1961 will see also the introduction of a fleet of prop-jet Vanguards, for service on TCA's high-density inter-city and Southern routes. With these two new types, and the famous Viscounts, TCA will become the first intercontinental airline in the world to operate an all-turbine fleet.



Spectacular flying times for TCA's DC-8 jet-liners . . . from Vancouver to Toronto in 4 hours 10 minutes, from Montreal to London in 6 hours 10 minutes. Passengers will enjoy the fastest, most convenient air travel yet known . . . smooth and vibrationless.

Bank Policies Clash

By HARRY YOUNG
Colonist Business Editor

The meeting of the Bank of Canada and the chartered banks to be held in camera in Montreal today may provoke the first major clash of wills between the two parties since the Bank of Canada was opened in 1935.

The subject is the suggestion by James E. Coyne, governor of the central bank, that the chartered banks should be forced to divert their customers' savings deposits into long term investments.

Mr. Coyne's argument in making this stick, he has said, is that the chartered banks are also deeply opposed to tying up savings money on anything but the short term.

In fact, Mr. Ashforth has shown that the banks have already contributed their full share to the NHA. At the end of 1956 the chartered banks had loaned $493,000,000 all since the bank act was changed in 1954.

It is the shortage of these NHA loans which has provoked the government with most of the heavy criticism about its tight money policy, and with an election in the offing it undoubtedly will want to see an amelioration of this condition.

Bearing the brunt of the attack by asking, in the name of the Bank of Canada, that chartered banks

A. E. Ashforth president of the Toronto Dominion Bank whose utterances on current economic affairs are usually well considered yesterday said that the chartered banks must at all times defend the principles of sound banking practice.

The accidental omission of two words in processing of my original copy, declaring with the Monnet Committee yesterday had the unfortunate effect of conveying the exactly opposite effect to that

As it stands at the moment the project seems too visionary to be attractive to outside capital.

PAPER MILLS DO WELL

President F. T. Sinclair reports sales at $79,474,192, representing a gain of 7 per cent over 1955's $74,313,685.

The results were termed "reasonably good" by Mr. Sinclair considering weakness in the lumber and plywood markets.

The pulp and paper mills at Ocean Falls and Elk Falls produced a record 291,285 tons of paper, paperboard and kraft pulp, an increase of [illegible] per cent. The No. 1 [illegible] at Elk Falls was changed [illegible] per cent and of shingles was

'Steamroller,' 'Shocking' Roars Angry Opposition

Hopes Not Dead

Decision of Saanich council to drop further study of a joint Victoria-Saanich municipal hall has put a damper on all annexation talks – but has not killed them.

Despite the setback a representative of residents still considering and hoping for annexation of their part of "district with the municipality of Oak Bay.

Robin Dunsmuir, 2959 Sea View said yesterday.

"As a private citizen I can do nothing. But I am strongly in favor of amalgamation. I am sure a great majority of the residents of the Carbon Bay area would welcome union with Oak Bay.

"I am sure that if we got together we could do something about it."

Norman C. Bell, 1057 Gordon Head president of the ratepayers association, took to the view.

"Comments echoed" he said "as it would on the heat of plans for amalgamation. Our association has no plans at present to revive them.

Sure Sign of Spring

Debate Cut Short On Cassiar Road

The Social Credit government last night successfully cut off debate on an opposition attempt to have the controversial Stewart-Cassiar road issue referred back to a legislative committee to complete its findings.

Cries of "a shocking exhibition of democracy" and "steamroller tactics" flooded the legislature as Premier Bennett summarily ended debate as soon as the evening sitting began.

Money's Worth

W. J. Asseltine (SC, Atlin), in whose constituency the road is located, said the people had been given their money's worth and that it was a good road.

"There may have been waste but I'd a little waste. Good have to have a few cars in every day use."

Highways Minister P. A. Gaglardi said that if there was any waste it had only been talked about while there had never been any.

"It would be just a waste of time . . . for this to be referred back to the committee," he said.

The member for Atlin also made a statement to the effect that there was waste and he hoped to justify

Gordon Dowding, (CCF Burnaby).

Mines Minister Kenneth Kiernan, who took over the department following the resignation of Mr. Sommers, said there were several obvious errors in the report. He was prepared to correct the report if it was referred back to committee.

The committee had sat for many days last session he said and had made no report to the legislature. And there was a transcript containing more than 700 pages of evidence.

The matter was the proper place to discuss the report was on the floor of the legislature and had the opportunity to hold discussion of it. The session has sat many days this week.

Fact, Fantasy?

"What is fact and what is fantasy?" demanded John Squire (CCF, Atlin). "The minister has formed a conclusion that should have not been done by the committee."

"It's a shocking thing that ministers have made up their minds when the committee has not made up its mind," said George Gregory (L, Victoria.

Mr. Gregory said all the arguments advanced by the government members were arguments for after the road was built.

Tom Ritter (CCF, Vancouver Point Grey) said he had been told he was not seconded that the committee be referred back to committee.

Provincial Secretary Wesley D. Black asked members on both sides of the House to "summer down."

'I Was a Member'

"I was a member of that committee," stormed Randolph Harding, (CCF, Kaslo-Slocan). "I have heard of fantastic statements on the floor of this House this afternoon and I would like to answer them."

Mr. Harding said Premier Bennett's opposition to the motion to refer the matter back to committee was "unprincipled" and "should not be tolerated."

When this the premier said he did not agree to be "railroaded" he said.

"We don't have to stand here and take insults like that," shot back Attorney-General Bonner.

Talking Politics

Socreds Rush Reinforcements

By PETER BRUTON

WRONG QUORUM: A real scare was thrown into three government members on the public accounts committee yesterday by a joking remark by Randolph Harding (CCF, Kaslo-Slocan).

"We've got a quorum, let's go," he said.

Chairman Donald Smith (SC, Victoria) glanced around the table and to his horror noticed that there were four opposition members present as against three from the government.

"DOWN WITH THE KING"

"Mr. Chairman, some families in this city have never seen a pay cheque because the wage-earner has been waylaid by friends," said Mr. Tisdalle. "Some people sleep in the bed of their own choice, of course."

NOW IT CAN BE TOLD DEPT.

"Stories were current that the railroad was pushed through in order that somebody could win some bets," said Opposition leader Robert Strachan yesterday. "Personally, I don't believe it."

MODERN INNOVATIONS

What does it mean to the people themselves? They don't have to wear snowshoes any more.

OPEN SEASON WHEN?

"Regulations under the act may authorize the shooting of females," said the explanation. "Hence the necessity for the amendment."

"Mr. Chairman, I suggest that every person in an accident [illegible] should be [illegible] at all."

Don't worry, ladies. There's no talking about deer.

Chetwynd Feeling Better

Condition of Agriculture Minister Ralph Chetwynd was described as "improved" by officials of Veterans' Hospital last night.

Mr. Chetwynd was admitted to hospital Monday, believed to be suffering a relapse from a heart condition.

Gypped on Used Car? Bonner Unsympathetic

If you get gypped by a second-hand car used car salesman like it to court will not expect the government to lend a hand, said [illegible]

This was the warning given in the legislature yesterday by Attorney-general Robert Bonner who said that in many cases it is the fault of the buyer himself for not [illegible] that he is getting a good buy.

Mr. Bonner admitted there were sharp trade practices in the used car business but said it was unfair to [illegible] the Fairness and been combatted by the efforts of better [illegible] and similar organizations.

He was replying to opposition demands that more protection be afforded to the public.

What's Cooking! — By Frances Thompson

Spices Must Be Properly Stored

So be sure and keep them tightly covered and don't have your spice shelf anywhere near the stove or other warm place. Your senses of smell and taste will quickly tell you when the flavor of a spice is gone. As you know most of the foregoing spices come in those little jars with perforated tops. Once opened it's a good idea to cover the jar with a small piece of waxed paper or foil before returning the top from which you will have removed the original circle of paper. Not very well expressed but you know what I mean.

Diocesan Board WA Donates $539 to Anglican College

He announced that a Miss Dutton of North Vancouver had left $80,000 to the college, the interest of this amount to be used for bursaries. This lady had also left a like amount to the WA. Dr. Farmerth said. At present they have a building 50 years old, but are going ahead with plans for more accommodation. The speaker told the gathering that there are 1,800 to 2,000 Anglicans out of a total population of 7,000 on the Campus. A full time priest is required, he pointed out, to the Anglicans, also a hostel is needed.

Youth groups, [illegible] she said, "it's the older people do not care enough. You can all help during serving and supporting all the girls auxiliaries are having to do.

Drip-Dry Fabrics Good Travelers

Man-Made Fibers

One of the perfect travellers is a new jersey of Arnel which dripdries and is ready for the next sightseeing trip without pressing. In keeping with the range for knitted fabrics it has a nice fashion edge this year and designers use it in handsome classic clothes with the easy but deliberately casual look of the 1930s. Styles with full skirts permanently pleated and the slim sheath pleated from a deep notice yoke to hemline dripdry too.

TV TALK

By Bruce Lowther

If there's a recession in the near future, don't say the television industry didn't sound a warning.

CBS, the bellwether of the industry, is having trouble selling part or all of Jackie Gleason's show, Playhouse 90, Mama McBoing Boing and several others. But its worst problem is sale of commercials for local station breaks.

Reason is said to be the shaky stock market. However, some network chiefs say the worst is over.

There's education as well as entertainment tonight.

Greater Victoria Association for Retarded Children has a special show on channel 6 at 7 p.m. Association president Duncan Marshall, principal Mrs. A. F. Raymond and Mrs. P. F. Armstrong, mother of a pupil, will discuss the work of the association school.

Scott Fitzgerald's unfinished novel, "Last Tycoon," with Jack Palance, should be a fine Playhouse 90 event. Others are Jack Benny's Shower of Stars the operetta "Faleen" and the first act of Rossini's "Barber of Seville."

TV BITS: Ed Sullivan has announced with regret that no more opera singers will appear on his show because they hurt ratings. Metropolitan Opera is expected to sign up with Ominbus instead . . . Latest rumor at CBC is that Ernie Kovacs will have his own show again this summer and if it does, Kovacs will replace Sid Caesar next fall. Caesar's status is up in the air and George Gobel may share emcee duties with Eddie Fisher in a one-hour weekly variety show . . . Channel 11 has a crew time for Alfred Hitchcock Presents 7:30 p.m. Saturday.

Late information is that Jackie Gleason vacations for three weeks starting this week. Kate Smith and Jonathan Winters substitute this week with Kathryn Grayson, Sarah Vaughan, Dick Haymes and Count Basie March 24 and a circus show March 30 . . . ABC has set April 7 as the starting date for its Sunday night RKO movies, opposite Sullivan and Allen . . . Old time Hollywood actors Edmund Lowe and John Litel have won character roles in the new western series, Maverick . . . CBS will not "Do You Trust Your Wife?" after March 26. Replacement will be Spike Jones and not Assignment Foreign Legion, as expected at first.

Today's Best

High Schools for Indians Labelled 'Too Academic'

Training given by Catholic high schools on Indian reservations does not prepare Indian youths sufficiently as it is "too academic," a legislative committee was told Tuesday.

Dean Goard, principal of Vancouver Vocational Institute, was testifying before the labor committee which is studying ways of increasing vocational training for Indian youths.

"You mean that young Indians coming out of these residential schools are at a disadvantage compared with others?" asked Rae Eddie (CCF, New Westminster).

"Absolutely," replied Mr. Goard.

He referred specifically to Catholic schools at Kamloops, Williams Lake, Mission, and Cranbrook and said that "in some measures they are missing the boat."

Mr. Goard said the best training could only be given in schools where there was a fairly high student population.

"If I had my way the facilities (at the four schools) would be centralized and the curriculum changed," he told the committee. "I'd like to see these schools consolidated so one decent high school could be

Mr. Goard said the main quarrel he had with such schools was "that some of the training given the kids . . . is too academic."

He said that at the Vocational Institute during the past three or four years there had been a total of 48 Indians enrolled in various courses and that 36 had been placed in jobs. Twelve "fell by the wayside."

The committee was told that the program had worked well but the main task was to interest the Indians enough to come and take vocational training.

Job Coverage Of Fishermen To Start Soon

Jack Clark, supervisor of insurance in the Victoria office of the Unemployment Insurance Commission, will attend a course on the recent extension of unemployment insurance coverage to fishermen this week-end in Vancouver.

The course will be conducted by insurance officials from Ottawa.

The new regulations come into effect April 1. Fishermen and their employers are advised to call at the local office at 1039 Johnson Street regarding the necessity of registration.

It is estimated that up to 375 fishermen in this area will be covered.

Talented Students Present Recital

By BERT BINNY

The talented students' recital at the Empress Hotel Tuesday evening drew an audience that was not very large but was, nevertheless, very appreciative.

There were 21 numbers in all covering speech arts, choral and solo, piano, flute, oboe, violin, French horn and vocal offerings.

Characteristic in all the piano solos was almost startlingly bold touch and attack. Prominent performers were Sidney Bulman-Fleming and Gordon Britton. Among the violinists, Bette Davies was quite outstanding.

The speech arts were nice and clear throughout with Patsy Perrins and Erie Eastlick especially acceptable. Speech arts seems to be handicapped by poor choice or, possibly, paucity of entertaining numbers.

Pauline Boyko's "Danse Macabre" (Saint-Saens) on the flute was very pleasing indeed. Ken. Muir becomes more and more the polished performer on the French horn.

Pamela Pavey's vocal solos were remarkably expressive and showed a mature approach as well as a voice of great possibilities.

The artists ranged in age from seven years up. Sponsor of the recital was the Victoria Musical Arts Society.

U.K. Government Ends Steel Link

LONDON (AP) — A major step in returning the British steel industry, nationalized by the post-war Labor government, to private enterprise was taken Tuesday with the announcement of a £40,000,000 offer of 11-ordinary shares in the Steel Company of Wales Limited.

It is the largest public marketing of ordinary share capital ever undertaken in the city, London's financial district.

The shares are to be offered at 1-each and the application list will be open March 14.

The Labor party has said it will again nationalize the steel industry if it is returned to power.

Pick a Profession

Students Hear Career Talks

High school students planning for careers when they graduate showed the greatest interest in the fields of teaching, nursing, and stenography at vocations or career day Tuesday.

Victoria and Oak Bay Senior High Schools invited speakers representing various professions yesterday to address student groups interested in careers varying from interior decorating to forest engineering.

At Victoria High, teaching was not included in the list of vocations because all information is available to the students in the Future Teachers Club, which has 84 active members. At Oak Bay, 57 students chose teaching.

Among the most popular topics at Victoria High were stenography, RCAF, nursing, science research and airlines operations.

Oak Bay students preferred law, medicine, forest and civil engineering, banking and radio and television production.

Popular choices at both schools were journalism, interior decorating, accounting and the RCMP.

Mount View High School will hold a career day on March 20.

Mount Douglas High School invites the experts in each field to speak to the students on different occasions throughout the school year instead of all on the same day.

Jog Across Canada Briton's Modest Aim

CALGARY (CP) — A wiry Briton from Hull, England, hopes to become the first man to run across Canada, possibly from Halifax to Vancouver.

Doug Hare, 26, a modest man when he speaks of his ambition, is sure the 3,386 mile feat can be done in a little more than four months.

Hare, now in Calgary with his wife, has had plenty of long-distance running experience, first as a youth in England and later while he was in the British Army. He fought with the army in Korea.

SURE OF SUCCESS

"I'm positive I can run across Canada from Halifax to Vancouver," he says. "I'd need about two months of rigorous training, a sponsor and then I'd be off. But if I was going to make the run this year I'd have to start sometime in March."

Hare says he would make the journey in one of two ways. Either he would run five miles in an hour, rest a while and then trot another five miles, or he would run 30 to 40 miles straight each day and then rest for a longer period.

All he would need along the way would be a car, a driver to accompany him, a few bananas and biscuits to eat and the odd drink. The rest "is fairy easy, except for the first two or three weeks of the run."

—Those first weeks is why he would like to start from the Atlantic coast. The Rockies, he says, would be easier to overcome late in the running.

Hare has been keeping himself in shape. He still takes the odd jog from Calgary to Cochrane, Alta., a distance of 24 miles. When training for the cross-Canada event, he says he would run to Cochrane and back to Calgary in a rigid schedule.

In 1950 he became the first man to run 100 miles non-stop on a track at Aldershot, England. His time was about 24 hours. He has also run the 100 miles between Bath and London in 15 hours, 15 minutes.

Weighing at times between 130 and 140 pounds, he doesn't expect to lose much weight on the Halifax-Vancouver run.

Serious Aims

Hoo-Hoo Branch Set Up

A branch of an organization based on Egyptian law and Lewis Carroll has been formed in Victoria.

It is the Hoo-Hoo Club, a branch of the International Concatenated Order of Hoo-Hoo a lumbermen's lodge first formed in 1892.

Although the adoption of names for officers from Lewis Carroll's writings is hardly serious, the leader of the 67,000-member organization is the "Snark of the Universe" the club's objectives are.

Victoria club, led by president Thomas Wellburn, will meet soon to decide what form its program will take and how to raise the necessary money.

Alex Hendry was elected secretary of the new club. Directors are N. D. Cameron, W. McCarter, H. Smith, M. Green, R. Whittington, E. Day and L. Pelland.

One of the club's objectives will be the planting of trees in Victoria parks.
